SAMPLE CORPSE.

Scheme of an Ohio Undertaker For Advertising Embalming.

An Ohio undertaker named Pearce doesn't allow sentiment to interfere with business. He can't see why the shoemaker adjoining his establishment should advertise his skill by displaying his samples, or the tailor across the street hang his latest sartorial confection in his front window, while the embalmer's good work has to find a lodgment beneath six feet of earth almost as soon as it has been accomplished.

Mark Twain, when he was shown the sarcophagus of a Pharaoh who lived in the time of Moses, shrugged his shoulders with contemptuous indifference and remarked to the curator of the museum:

"Haven't you got a corpse that is a little fresher?"

All Mark has to do is to visit the funeral direction establishment of Mr. Pearce at Ardmore. There he will probably find something more to his fastidious fancy in the shape of a sample of embalming, kept on view by Mr. Pearce for inspection by his customers. The "subject" has now done service for a period of three years, and the proprietor confidently expects that it will last as long as he remains in business.

The body in question has been in the very warmest workshop of his establishment all this while, and the leather-like flesh of the corpse is totally free from odor or putrefaction. Some say the hair on a body will grow after death. This probably originated in the mind of a dramatist or novelist, who wanted to sensationalize his readers to sell his books, for there lies Mr. Pearce's dead man, with his very last hair cut the same as it was two or three years ago. Then some say that the hair will fall out, but you couldn't pull the hair out of that body with tweezers. Each hair seems to be particularly riveted to the hardening leather and bone. Even the fuzzy, lighter hairs of all other parts of the body remain the same as they were at death.

Formaldehyde, a product of wood alcohol, and a comparatively recent product, is the fluid with which the body was embalmed, and Mr. Pearce says that there is now a fluid, with other elements added, that is far better than the 140 ounces, or a little over one gallon—$3 worth—of the formaldehyde used for the desiccation of the body in question.—New York Herald.

A Woman's Wit.

A western judge was approached by a verdant couple who wanted to be married. The would-be groom asked the price of tying the knot and was told it was $1.

"Can't you take beeswax?" inquired the rustic.

The wax was brought in and upon being weighed was found to be worth just 60 cents.

"Well," said the anxious groom, "tie the knot, and I'll fetch more wax next week."

"No, sir. I don't trust that is against the rules of the office."

Slowly the disappointed youth turned to go out, saying, "Come, Sal, let's go."

"Yes, I can and I will," responded the judge, laughing, and he did.—Exchange.

Tooth Filled With Glass.

The latest use for glass is instead of gold as a material for stopping decayed teeth. It answers splendidly and is far less conspicuous than the yellow metal. Of course it is not ordinary glass, but is prepared by some new patented process which renders it soft and malleable.

Glass, too, is being extensively used for church bells. It can be toughened so that there is no risk of its cracking, and the tone is said to be, beyond anything yet invented, perfect, soft and sonorous.

The color of this new bell glass is a deep, rich green.—Philadelphia Record.

American Forests Disappearing.

A statistician computes that in 50 years' time there will not be a single tree in this country. Each year it takes 500,000 acres of timber to supply sleepers for the railroads.

NEWLAND'S VICTORY.

closes the mint at Carson? Mr. Livingston. No; the assay office.

Mr. Newlands. It closes both the mint and the assay office.

The debate was continued by Messrs. Dockery of Missouri, Shauroth of Colorado, Cox of Tennessee and Ogden of Louisiana, supporting Mr. Newlands, and by Bingham of Pennsylvania, Johnson of Indiana and Cannon of Illinois, against the proposition.

The principal opposition came from Mr. Bingham of Pennsylvania, who argued that Carson was but 250 miles from San Francisco, that it was off the line of direct transportation, that it was away from the centers of population and that the coin had to be transported east at an expense. He argued that the mint had fallen into disuse and cited the testimony of Mr. Preston, Director of the Mint, in support of the assertion. The appropriation was vigorously attacked by the Republicans on the grounds of uselessness and that economy demanded its abolition.

Mr. Newlands. Will the gentleman allow me to make an inquiry. The gentleman stated that Carson City was off the line of travel.

Mr. Bingham. Off the main line of the railroad.

Mr. Newlands. I wish to inform that there is a continuous line of railroads, stretching from the north to the south, on the eastern side of the Sierra Nevadas, of about 400 miles, consisting of three railroads, and these are all contributory to Carson and they all penetrate mining regions of great value and importance, mining regions whose productions are being stimulated every day.

Then followed a running discussion and at the close of the debate Mr. Newlands arose saying:

Mr. Newlands. I only ask for a moment in which to say there are really only three mints now in operation, the San Francisco mint, the Philadelphia mint, and the Carson mint. The Denver mint is not yet in operation, and will not be for a year or more. The Carson mint is the only one that is established within the five or six mining States which produce all the bullion of the country. An appropriation of only $2,500 is asked in order to maintain this mint. The country is separated from San Francisco and the California coast by the Sierra Nevada Mountains, which constitute a natural division. There are no difficulties whatever with reference to transportation to the Carson mint, and the mining regions absolutely tributary to that mint are sufficient to sustain the operations that are asked for.

Mr. Bingham. I ask for a vote on the amendment.

Mr. Cannon. I want to ask what it is.

The Chairman. The amendment offered by the gentleman from Nevada.

Mr. Cannon. Is it appropriate for the mint at Carson City?

Mr. Newlands. Yes.

Mr. Cannon. I only want to say one thing, and then I am ready for a vote. I wish to vote whatever is necessary for the public service, and would like to vote for a mint, if it is necessary. I do not blame the gentleman from Nevada, with all my esteem for him, for wanting this appropriation made. If I were in his place, I should do that, because this is a representative government. Now, here is a mint away out there in the mountains, in a great center of population. (Laughter) Why, there are nearly 45,000 people in that magnificent State; and this is an appropriation of $30,000 for a mint, or nearly $1. to each inhabitant. Now, I do not think that is necessary for mint purposes. Perhaps, though, as one of the industries out there, it might be apt. (Laughter)

Mr. Newlands. It is true the population of Nevada is sparse. I once appeared before the Attorney-General to urge the appointment of a distinguished Judge from Nevada as a Circuit Judge on that coast. He looked at me rather quizzically, and he said: "Mr. Newlands, don't you think that Nevada has had enough, considering the sparseness of her population?" My answer was, "No; not if you consider the brains of her men." And I ask for this as a tribute to the intelligence of Nevada. (Laughter.)

The Chairman. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Nevada [Mr. Newlands.]

Mr. Bingham. I ask for the reading of the amendment.

The Chairman. The Clerk will read the amendment again, without objection.

The amendment was again read.

The question being taken, on a division (demanded by Mr. Newlands) there were—aye 88, nays 82.

Mr. Newlands. I ask for tellers.

Tellers were ordered; and the Chairman appointed Mr. Bingham and Mr. Newlands.

The committee again divided, and the tellers reported—aye 88, nays 77.

The Republicans including Loud and Barham of California vote against Nevada on this question. The vote was led by Speaker Reed himself.

The bill will now be reported to the House with the amendments which have been added thereto and the House will again have an opportunity to vote on each amendment by aye and nay vote. The Republicans have organized a strong fight and will marshall their forces for the final vote. As the majority of the Republicans is about 100 it will be seen that the probable action of the House will be adverse. Mr. Newlands has secured the support

Are being shown in our cases. Dainty toilet articles in the most useful materials, made in the best manner. We make a specialty of cut glass bottles filled with dainty perfumes. Lowest prices at

of all the Democrats, Silver men, Populists and Western silver Republicans. Added to this a number of Eastern Republicans will refrain from voting against the Mint out of personal consideration for Mr. Newlands and the only hope is that a sufficient number of Republicans will remain away the day of the vote to allow the combined vote of the Democrats and silver men to carry the day. Mr. Newlands is conducting a vigorous canvass of the House on the question and will make a stubborn resistance. The fact that Speaker Reed left the chair to vote in the Committee of the Whole and was conspicuous by the fact that he led the vote when tellers were demanded is a sufficient indication to the party under his control what his desires are.

It is but one more revelation of the real attitude of the Republican party upon legislation affecting the interests of the west and especially Nevada. They have destroyed our leading industry and now would efface every institution whose memory is in any way connected with that industry.

Washoe on Velvet.

For a number of years past Washoe county has always had a large floating indebtedness, at the close of the books for the year and the opening for the succeeding year and practically requires the reviving of the next year to settle up the debt of the past.

During the year of 1897 not a single piece of county script has been issued and the year 1898 will open up with plenty of funds on hand.

It was practically settled yesterday that the V. & T. R. R. would at an early day pay its delinquent taxes for the years 1898 and '97 and this of itself is good cause for congratulation.

All road bonds have been paid and only $2,000 in agricultural bonds are unpaid, one bond of which will be due and will be paid next month. Some of the County officers contemplated a banquet to celebrate the excellent showing of the past year and ring the expense in on the county, but someone suggested that the result of the McKinley wave of prosperity, but as all of the county officers except one are "silver party of Nevada" men, or Populists, he would have a hard time explaining how silver men happened to bring about McKinley prosperity. Considering all of these objections the banquet was abandoned.

Mr. Bingham. All mints have an assay office.

Mr. Newlands. Yes; but there is no mint at St. Louis, although you have an assay office there. For all practical purposes St. Louis is about as remote from the mining regions as Philadelphia. We regard St. Louis as a portion of the great east, not of the great west.

NEWLAND'S VICTORY.

HIS FIGHT IN COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE.

Nevada's Congressman Shows His Mettle Against Bitter Opponents, But Gains His Point.

coined into money?

Mr. Bingham. And circulated there.

Mr. Cannon. The gentleman from Nevada has asked me a question. Does he desire that I shall answer it?

Mr. Newlands. Certainly.

Mr. Cannon then proceeded to attempt to answer Mr. Newlands' question by stating that the mint was too far from the center of population.

A vote was then taken on the Deadwood proposition which carried by a close vote.

Mr. Newlands then gained the floor and proceeded as follows:

Mr. Newlands. Mr. Chairman, I am very much indebted to the gentleman for his courtesy, and I offer the following amendment:

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend paragraph 55 by inserting between lines 17 and 18 the following:

"Mint at Carson, Nevada: For Superintendent, $3,000, assayer, and melter and refiner, at $2,500 each; chief clerk, $1,800; bookkeeper, cashier, assistant assayer, assistant melter and refiner, and weight clerk, at $1,500 each; in all $17,300."

"For wages of workmen, $10,000; for incidental and contingent expenses, including wastage of operative officers and loss on sale of sweeps, $5,000."

Mr. Newlands. Mr. Chairman, the customary five minutes will not permit me to present all I wish to submit on the subject, and I will ask the indulgence of the House for at least ten minutes.

The Chairman. The gentleman from Nevada asks permission to speak continuously ten minutes. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair bears none.

Mr. Newlands. Mr. Chairman, there are or were, five mints in the United States: One at Philadelphia, one at San Francisco, one at New Orleans, one in process of construction at Denver, and one at Carson. The mint at Carson is abolished by this act. The question has arisen in the discussion of the last amendment as to where the coinage should properly be done—whether in the East, in the great commercial and banking centers of the country, or in the West, where the bullion is produced—and my learned friend from Illinois [Mr. Conno] labored under the misapprehension that these assay offices and mints were organized in the Western States with a view of enabling the miners there to get a higher price for their product, unmindful of the fact that so far as gold is concerned—and coinage is now confined to gold, except as to the accumulated stock—it is the privilege of the miner now to take his bullion to the mint and have it turned into coin; that he receives the coin, the Government making no purchase of bullion whatever. The question is whether that convenience should be afforded to him nearer the source of production or 3,000 miles away in the Eastern States.

But, Mr. Chairman, I am opposed to the system of appropriating to the east all of the industries that belong to the west, industries that can be properly and economically conducted near the source of production.

I shall have a few more words to say on this subject when the question of the Carson mint shall be reached; but now I rise only for the purpose of saying that I hope the request of the gentleman from South Dakota will be granted, and that the State will be recognized as the fifth mineral-producing State of the country by inserting in the law the amendment he presents.

At this point Cannon of Illinois got the floor, and among other things said: "But," says my very intelligent and learned friend from Nevada, for whom I have very great respect, "presently we shall come to the mint at Carson, and I shall have something to say about that."

Mr. Newlands. Do not anticipate.

Mr. Cannon. If I recollect aright the mint at Carson is omitted from this appropriation. Why? Because when the population of Nevada was larger and she got her two Senators, away back in boom times, under the cry of benefitting the poor man, we being insufficiently advised, at only established an assay office—but a mint at Carson. I say it with respect, but if you will go back to the appropriation bills, you will find that the officers of that mint, without doing a great deal of mintage, have run a very profitable industry at that point. Now, in fact, we have no more use for an assay office at Deadwood or an assay office in Nevada nor an assay office in these mining camps than we have for any other thing we do not need.

Mr. Newlands. Will the gentleman permit a question?

Mr. Cannon continued on this line of argument.

Mr. Newlands. May I interrupt my friend's athletic exercises for just one observation? [Laughter.]

Mr. Kelley. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last seven words.

Mr. Newlands. I understand that that motion is made for my benefit. I wish to ask the gentleman from Illinois a question.

Mr. Newlands. I will answer it if I can.

Mr. Newlands. Assuming, as is the fact, that there is a United States mint at Philadelphia and one at Carson, and assuming that $600,000,000 in gold and silver, in almost equal proportions, were produced in the State of Pennsylvania near the Philadelphia mint, what would the gentleman think of the policy of a government which would send that $600,000,000 of bullion 3,000 miles across the continent to be coined into money? Yet that would be practically equivalent to what is done. Six hundred million dollars of Nevada's gold and silver have gone to the Philadelphia mint.

Mr. Bingham. The gentleman knows that it is the only fully equipped mint in the country.

Mr. Newlands. Well, I do not accuse the gentleman from Pennsylvania of anything like greed, but I do say that all psychologists admit that on these occasions there is a certain unconscious cerebration which affects the minds of the miners.

Mr. Newlands. In regard to every industry of those communities. [Laughter.] Why should we have these $600,000,000 of gold and silver bullion produced in Nevada dragged to Philadelphia to be this currency in the beginning, but in most respects it, instead of having this silver accumulating in your Treasury, where it constitutes a burden to the world. You recollect that the average intellect does not comprehend that that silver is constructively coined and in the hands of the people in the form of silver certificates. The average intellect regards it as an accumulation of silver which, as a result of hostile legislation, may be let loose upon the world and produce a flood of this money."

This office at Carson under the present appropriation is already made practically an assay office. The expeniture, I believe, runs for only $33,000. It seems to me that considering the fact that Nevada is to-day the fourth or the fifth bullion producing

State in this country, it is entitled to this recognition by the government, and that its requirements can not be properly and wisely met by the government except by furnishing the customary facilities to the miners of that region. There is already a handsome building there, for which not even a watchman is provided.

Mr. Bingham. Provision of that kind will be made in the sundry civil bill, which provides for the care of the public buildings of the country. That is not done in this bill.

Mr. Dingley. Is it proposed that simply an assay office shall be conducted there, or an assay office and a mint?

Mr. Newlands. The proposition is to keep it as a full mint, but the entire appropriation is cut down from the large amount formerly granted to only $30,000.

Mr. Bingham. Thirty-two thousand five hundred dollars.

[Here the hammer fell.]

Mr. Bingham. If the gentleman from Nevada desires five minutes more, I ask unanimous consent that he be allowed to proceed.

There was no objection.

With reference to the silver bullion now at the Philadelphia mint, the Director of the Mint testified that they could not coin it fast enough; that they had to work their men, I believe, from sixteen to eighteen hours per day.

Mr. Bingham. That was on the united coinage.

Mr. Newlands. Yet we have that accumulation there under the Sherman act awaiting coinage; it is impossible to mint that bullion because of the want of mint facilities. In the west we have mint facilities. We have this amount of bullion properly belonging to that region, and the only reasons given for the discontinuance of this mint has been that the bullion which we produce has been taken from us to Philadelphia.

Mr. Dingley. Before the gentleman takes his seat, I should like to ask a question for information. Is any silver bullion purchased under the Sherman act coined at the Carson mint?

Mr. Newlands. There has been. I am not aware that there is any now.

Mr. Dingley. Then there would be nothing coined there except gold?

Mr. Newlands. I presume so, though

I am not informed.

Mr. Dingley. Now, at an assay office gold bullion can be deposited and the check of the Government given therefor, just the same as would be done at a mint. The bullion owner gets precisely the same privilege at an assay office as at a mint. When the gold bullion is deposited, he receives a check from the Government at once for the amount of coin which the bullion represents although it is not at once coined. Thus that bullion is practically converted into money at the mint
